

Fundamental Duties And Concept Of Dharma As Was Practised In Ancient India

Aahana Vikram

It Can Be Safely Concluded That In Ancient Indian Civilization as Stated By DHARMASASTRAS, Practices, Traditions And Customs Prevalent In Those Times And Which Were Considered Beneficial To The Society Were Codified As A Law And Citizens Were Asked To Follow Those Law. Thus Citizens Were Well Aware Of These Laws Which Were Mostly In The Form Of Duties. These Were Actually Their Way Of Living And Nothing Else.

The Solution Lies In Reviving To Basic Indian Concept Of Law Which Is Already There In Ancient Concept Of Dharma.
