

Coverage of International Events by Bihari's Newspapers (From mid-18th to mid-20th Century)

Abhay Kumar Singh

The importance of Bihari newspapers could be well realized not only as the constructive opposition giving helpful suggestions for their remedy. They did not stop by merely giving suggestions to the government alone but also gave similar constructive counsels to the Indian people for the progress of India. They were advised to boycott the purchase and the use of foreign goods for the benefit of Indian economy. They even wrote gazals, poems, allegorical stories, dramas, etc. to highlight the foreign character of the British rule and its consequences. It was pointed out with the help of history, that even the English had once been slaves of the Norman kings. The French (1789) and the American (1776) revolutions and other historical events fortified their faith in the ultimate liberation of the subject people from tyranny and foreign.
